

Presents

Germany Meets the United States

Monday, October 3rd at 12pm in Social Sciences 311

Speaker: Dr. Crister Garrett, University of Leipzig

The Rise of Transatlantic Populism: Germany, the U.S. and the Politics of Anxiety.

The talk will highlight the issues that dominate the 2016 U.S. presidential election and the 2017 German federal elections, especially with regard to the controversy surrounding immigration and minorities.

Please email Dr. Paulette Kurzer to RSVP by Thursday, September 29, 2016— kurzer@arizona.edu

Tuesday, October 4th, 10am- 2pm

Student Memorial Union, North Ballroom

Annual University of Arizona Study Abroad Fair

This annual event is open to all University of Arizona students. Both German Studies and the School of Government & Public Policy offer several study abroad programs in Austria, Germany, and Switzerland, as well as funding opportunities for students in the department majors.

Wednesday, October 5th at 4pm at the Poetry Center

Panel Discussion: Immigration, European and American Perspectives

Panelists Include:

Dr. Paulette Kurzer—School of Government & Public Policy

Dr. David Gramling— Department of German Studies

Dr. Barbara Norrander —School of Government & Public Policy

Thursday, October 6th at 5pm in the Silver and Sage Room– Old Main

Speaker: Dr. Renae Watchman, Mount Royal University, Canada

Indianthusiasm: Germany's Obsession with Indigenous People

Dr. Watchman will (re-)introduce the ongoing problematic fascination of North American Indigenous peoples by others in Germany. A light reception will begin at 6pm, following the lecture.

Germany meets the US would not have been possible without the generous support of the Embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany—Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Information Center and the joint efforts of the Department of German Studies, American Indian Studies, the School of Government & Public Policy, the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences, and the College of Humanities.

